HARDWARE CO. IS ENTERED BY YOUNG ROBBER

Barrere and Nickerson

SEEN IN WINDOW

Loring Wittich Discovers
Thief; Entered Cellar

The Barrere & Nickerson hardware store, W. Main-st., was broken into and robbed Sunday between 1:15 and 1:30 a. m. by a lone thief, described as "a young man wearing a cap," by Loring Wittich, W. Main-st., who, after putting his automobile in a garage, saw the robber moving goods from the front window of the store. The thief had entered the store by removing a grating from a cellar window and slipping into the basement then making his way to the main floor. It is thought he worked alone.

LOOT IS LISTED
After an investigation by Glen I. Nickerson, S. Court-st., manager of the store, the list of goods missing is reported to be a hunter's knife and sheath, one Winchester .52 rifle, a 5-cell Eveready flashlight and three Bair brand razors.

A large quantity of loot which the robber left behind when he was discovered by Mr. Wittich was found in a basket sitting at the head of the cellar stairs. This basket contained four boxes of 410 shells, five dozen knives in a leather case, one common clock, one electric clock, one Big Ben clock, one kit of socket wrenches in a tin box, one double barreled 12-gauge shot gun and one 12-gauge pump gun. A .410 double-barreled gun and a baseball suit were found on the floor at the top of the stairs.

After discovering the robber working in the window, Mr. Wittich hastened to the store where Herman Turney, custodian, was scrubbing the floor. Turney called the police station but when police arrived the robber had made his getaway.

Two of the policemen had answered a call on N. Pickaway-st. when a family row was taking place and when they returned, they too, went to the scene of the robbery. Every street and alley in the vicinity of the business district was patrolled for more than an hour but no trace of the thief could be found. Members of the city police department and of the sheriff's office investigated the theft.

THOUGHT YOUNG MAN
Because of the darkness of the interior of the hardware store, there being a light in the rear of the store room, Wittich was unable to obtain a description of the thief other than that he appeared to be a young man and wore a cap. The fact that he was trying to steal a baseball suit added to the opinion that the thief was young.

'Tension Quake' Ohio Geologist Terms Trouble

While Ohioans took a survey of damages, believed only slight, caused by an unusually intense earth tremor last night, geologists today sought to explain the strange shocks. The tremor was not observed here.

Slipping of strata under the earth's surface—a readjustment that occurs sporadically in the middle west—was believed responsible. No serious damage was reported done by the tremor which occurred in three distinct shocks, lasting only a few minutes and apparently centering near Lima, but it was sufficient to fire citizens with excitement.

IN WESTERN OHIO
The shocks, a survey showed today, spread through western Ohio and eastern Indiana. A Zanesville man reported the shock, saying it was of decided intensity.

By PROF. WILBER STOUTE, STATE GEOLOGIST
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21.—The earth disturbances noted in Ohio last night were what are known as "tension quakes." Quakes of this nature often occur without being detected by the average person.

They are liable to take place at any time and are due to a shrinkage of a portion of the interior of the earth with the outer layers trying to adjust themselves. That the tremors were felt in western Ohio and eastern Indiana make it seem probable that the adjustment on this occasion took place along the fault line which begins near Waterville, O. and extends southward through that part of the state.

This line of fault passes near Lima and Findlay and in Adams-becomes a break which has been the scene of numerous adjustments in the past. The same line has been traced down into central Kentucky, where it adjoins the "Larue" fault of western Kentucky.

No disturbances in Ohio ever are likely to be at all serious as the granite rock underlying this strata has become cool. The lower strata are approximately 3,000 feet below the earth's surface in the western part of the state. The tremor of last night may have developed a break either near the ground-level or at the lower strata. The change probably was limited to a few inches, and it is hardly likely if any streams were affected or any noticeable changes made on the surface.

BRIT. BLAMES U.S., FRANCE

Says Refusal to Extend Credit Causes Abandonment of Gold Standard.

LONDON, Sept. 21.—Refusal of the United States and France to extend further credit to the Bank of England directly preceded the British government's decision to abandon the gold standard temporarily. Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Snowden told the House of Commons today.

His revelation was made in the course of introducing an emergency measure providing for suspension of the gold standard act of 1925 for a period of six months.

"We informed the United States and French government confidentially on Friday of the situation and asked their views of the probability of obtaining further credit," Snowden said.

"In both cases the replies were friendly and sympathetic but afforded no prospects of further credit."

NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE

COLUMBUS, O.—New maps of Ohio and its congressional, senatorial and judicial districts have been prepared by the secretary of state, J. M. Brown. The maps contain general information including the population of the state by counties, vote cast for president in 1924 and 1928 and for congress in 1928 and 1930. There is also a roster of supreme court judges of courts of appeals, judges of common pleas courts, members of state senate and house of representatives with decennial apportionment for the General Assembly of Ohio under the fifteenth federal census of 1930.

The cigarette tax law is causing trouble for Harry S. Day to become president in devising a system of stamps to take care of this new revenue producer. He has received 15,000,000 two-cent stamps out of a total of 180,000,000 which he has ordered. Then he has also received 10,000,000 one-cent stamps and 10,000,000 five-cent stamps. Revenue from the stamps has been turning into the treasury daily to the amount of $100,000. Large amounts are being received from the stamps in the big chain stores. It is expected that the revenue by the end of this month will reach approximately a million and half dollars.

Wholesale cigarette dealers and distributors are protesting against the big chain stores that profit from the purchase of stamps.

They are allowed 10 percent reduction by the state for affixing stamps to their cigarettes. It is said they have become so confident that they can afford the stamps and still make a profit for the firm. If this is true they may not care whether the cigarette stamp is ever abolished. They must open each crate when received from the cigarette factory, count the cartons and next each individual carton. Then a stamp is affixed to each package of cigarettes which are replaced in the cartons, next in the large pack-

UNITED FOR LIGHTNING VICTIM

Funeral services for Willard Aker, caretaker of Brown's Chapel and cemetery, who was killed by lightning during a heavy storm Thursday night, at which time several others were seriously injured, and more than two score additional persons were stunned, were held at Brown's Chapel, Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and Rev. Ray Tucker, who himself was knocked down and bruised by the bolt that killed Aker, conducted the services. Interment was made in the cemetery at the church.

The others who were seriously injured, were continuing to show improvement, but it will be some time before they have fully recovered. Later reports regarding the tragedy are to the effect that those who had taken refuge in a large shed, which was being used for a kitchen, the structure being about 25 by 30 feet, and that the lightning struck a tree near the shed, and ran into the structure on a wire, grounding chiefly through the bodies of those packed in the place.

Alex Maco is still regarded as in a serious condition, due to being blinded by the lightning, and one leg paralyzed. Several of the more seriously hurt were badly burned wherever there was any metal about their bodies.

A horse tragedy was probably averted by reason of the fact that most of those attending the social had left home just before the storm broke.

Maco and Aker were standing side by side when the lightning struck, while others were within a few feet of them.

ages and finally in the shipping crates. Looks like they are going to lots of trouble, but just consider some of the "Big fellows" who will buy over a hundred thousand dollars worth of stamps per year. That's a saving of ten thousand at one time.

Great preparations are being made for the Gateway Jubilee to be held in the Capital City, September 28, 29 and 30. A jubilee queen will be selected from young ladies on the floats and she will be crowned at a celebration to be held following the parade.

Of the number 889 were public employees. Fatalities for the month increased to 126, or 46 more than the month before.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

LAUD SCOUT FIRE-FIGHTERS for ending forest blaze.

Scouts attending Camp Baxter, conducted by the San Joaquin Calaveras Directed Council of the Boy Scouts of America, with headquarters at Stockton, Cal., recently received the congratulatory of M. B. Partt, State Forester, for their work in fighting a forest fire in the Sierras near their camp.

Thirty-five Scouts on a nature hike were on a trail about five miles from camp when the blaze was sighted. Armed only with Scout knives and two Scout axes, they cut and cleared a wide fire trail, back-firing around the burning area, thereby completely isolating the blaze.

Runners sent to camp brought sufficient Scouts and equipment to extinguish completely the fire in the underbrush. By checking the fire in time, the Scouts are credited with saving several hundred square miles of timber and grazing. In appreciation of the Scouts' service, the Forestry Department is sending at regular intervals, men and equipment into the camp to train Scouts in fire-fighting as a part of their regular camp program.

COOL-HEADEDNESS PRAISED

While working on the farm of a relative near Brainerd, Minn., Scout Donovan Ogren of Troop 100 of St. Paul, Minn., recently demonstrated his proficiency in first aid which he learned as a Scout. One day Clifton Forrester, his cousin, 19, and he were sawing wood on a back circle saw. Dust accumulated under the frame, so deep as to impede the efficiency of the saw. Without stopping the saw, Forrester attempted to remove the dust with his foot. His foot slipped and his leg hit the saw, making a deep cut about an inch wide.

Scout Ogren pulled his cousin away and seeing the condition of the wound, grabbed a rope and made a tourniquet. He then accompanied the injured young man to a hospital where doctors praised the cool-headedness and efficient first aid of the Scout.

SERVE ON HISTORIC SHIP

Boy Scouts of the several Councils in Greater New York volunteered their services to assist in directing great crowds which daily inspected the frigate Constitution, better known as "Old Ironsides," on its visit to the metropolis. Groups of approximately twenty Scouts were assigned for daily service on the ship.

HANDICRAFT WINS CUP

Frederick W. Hinkle, acting President of the Board of Park Commissioners of Cincinnati, Ohio has presented a silver cup to Scout Denning Peaslee of Troop No. 131 of that city, for the best model of a proposed log cabin shelter in Mount Airy Forest.

"TIRE GRIEF" LESSENED

In the front of the Boy Scout Indian Village at San Diego, Calif., there may be seen a pile of "tire grief" about fourteen feet square and four feet deep. It contains some 5,344.671 pieces of glass, railroad spikes, nails, tin cans, and other tire destroyers.

The Boy Scouts of San Diego picked up these "puncture pests" as an annual Good Turn to the motorists of the city. It is one of the summer activities of the Scouts, who sometimes have their "puncture pest hikes," with rivalries to see who can collect the greatest number. Each Troop adds the week's results to the heap but only after a count is made and recorded.

PRAISE FROM CARDINAL

Words of high praise for the Boy Scout Movement were heard by the many delegates to the Sixth International Boy Scout Conference held recently near Vienna, Austria, when His Eminence, Cardinal Piffli, Archbishop of Vienna, addressed the session.

In the course of his address, Cardinal Piffli said:

"The Boy Scout Movement is under a favorable star. It is my

RECEIVE LETTER FROM O. STATE U.

The Pickaway Dairy Co., 130 W. Water-st., distributors of the well known and used "Gold Bar" butter is in receipt of a letter from D. S. Koehneiser, extension specialist of the department of dairy technology at Ohio State University, in regard to prizes which were taken by the local company at the Ohio State Fair.

The letter is as follows:

The Pickaway Dairy Company, 130 W. Water Street, Circleville, Ohio.

I want to congratulate you upon your good showing at the Ohio State Fair. I feel that a product that can win second prize can generally be accepted as equal to the first prize, but in such a contest it is necessary to offer first and second prizes and, no doubt, there is some slight characteristic found by the judge to place the first over the second. However, the credit for the production of a good quality product should be just as great to the man with the red ribbon.

Enclosed you will find your score card and red ribbon for creamery butter in pails, and score card and red ribbon for creamery butter in tubs. Your premium money will be sent to you by the Fair Management. The Fairmont Creamery Company will mail you a check for your tub of butter.

Hoping that you will be showing again next year, I am,

Very truly yours,
D. S. Koehneiser.

SINCLAIR GAS NOW 13c GAL.

Sinclair gasoline can now be obtained from any of the county's filling stations for 13 cents per gallon, according to an announcement by Troy W. White, local manager of the Sinclair Refining Co. This is a drop from the former price of 15 cents.

Sinclair realizes, with changing engines and changing motoring conditions, no one kind of gasoline can meet every motoring need or satisfy every motorist's demands.

One kind of engine-performance requires high-test gasoline—another requires high compression gas. Some drivers like a speedy, peppy, flashy gasoline. Some, whose motors knock, want a gas to stop knocks. Others prefer a gasoline which gives sustained power with long mileage.

Today, one gasoline cannot satisfy all these demands. BUT three gasolines can—and Sinclair "3-Gas" Service DOES—give you just the Superior Engine Performance you want.

The three gasolines offered by the Sinclair are: Sinclair Aircraft, Sinclair H-C and Sinclair Regular. The latter is now selling for 13 cents. It allows your engine to operate at its maximum compression and delivers its full power under all engine conditions.

Drive in at a Sinclair station tomorrow and try the new Sinclair 13 cent gas.

conviction that the Boy Scouts are now one of the greatest and most important in the modern young people's movements. The idea of readiness to help others, is one which unites nations; it can flow out of the natural compassion felt by good men, or out of the especially Catholic conception; the supernatural effect of a good deed.

Deeply moved, Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout Movement, voiced his thanks for the splendid words spoken by a Catholic Prince of the Church as a tribute to Scouting.

AID DESTITUTE FAMILIES

When three homes near Mauston, Wis., were totally destroyed by forest fires recently, the Mauston Boy Scout group came to the aid of the destitute families, and soon had furnished them with household goods and clothing to start anew.

Under the leadership of their scoutmaster and two Troop Committee men, the Scouts obtained the use of three army trucks; and canvassed their home community for surplus furniture and clothing.

FIND STOLEN PURSE

A purse which had contained cash, diamonds and valuable papers, stolen from the home of Mrs. C. R. Beason of Royal Oak, Mich., was found recently in a field by two Boy Scouts, Robert Randall and Glen Arnold, who turned it over to the Royal Oak police.

Twenty-five dollars was missing from the purse but the germs and papers were intact.

HENRY WEIMER FINE CANDIES

Henry Weimer, Circleville's veteran candy maker is still in business and has one of the most up-to-date staple and fancy groceries in this city. His store is located at 316 Watt-st. When Mr. Weimer first opened his store at this location his products offered included mostly candy and other like confections. Now he can supply any of your needs in the grocery line.

Probably Mr. Weimer's candies are the best known in Circleville and Pickaway-co. He began making candy when quite young and was employed by Mr. Wittich in his store for many years. Finally he decided to start his own business, and since that time has been one of the city's most successful and enterprising business men.

Besides his regular and usual products, Mr. Weimer always has a small featured product to offer, in keeping with the season of the year.

His candies are known all over the state, and his customers extend over the same area.

He asks you to visit his store on Watt-st. these afternoons and try some of his ice cream specials and soft drinks.

HASWELL FURNACE IS GOOD MAKE

With changing weather conditions prevailing most of the time, it is well to be on the safe side and be prepared to meet the cold weather which is undoubtedly on the way and probably just around the corner.

How will your homes be heated this winter? This is the question of any number of house residents. Probably the best solution to this question is the installation of a "Haswell Three Pipe Radiator Furnace." The furnace can be installed by skilled mechanics at reasonable prices.

Some of the advantages of this furnace are:

There is no necessity to remove the front to replace the grates, as this can be done through the ash door by any boy in five minutes.

The advantage of taking in the air which fans the fire through the hot blast door of our furnace over other makes is that it is taken in above the ash pan door and passes down to the ash space and is heated before it reaches the grates. Fire will burn better with a heated air blast than with a blast of cold air against the live coals.

The standard feed door is very large, so that large lumps of coal may be used. The feed door is a solid door, and by using our air blast we avoid using a slide in the feed door which checks the fire. From the door frame to the inside shell is only six inches, so smoke and gas will not accumulate in the pouch feed.

Mr. Haswell will be glad to answer any inquiries you wish to make.

Tanks for gasoline and gas engines can be furnished at Haswell's cheaper than you can buy them from the engine manufacturer.

to those who would come and gather them, they realized that many deserving families would not have a share in the free peaches due to the lack of transportation facilities.

Fortunately, before the world of "free peaches" was widely noted about the camp truck of the Boy Scouts of America, which covers the whole state and also a part of Maryland, returned to the city with some camp leaders. The Council communicated with the Family Service of the Associated Charities who agreed to cooperate by furnishing names of needy families who would appreciate the peaches.

The Wilmington Area Council through its Field Executive in southern Delaware, arranged with local Scouts to do the picking. Growers furnished baskets and the peaches were already gathered when the camp truck arrived manned by a group of Sea Scouts.

Two truck loads of peaches were brought into Wilmington and delivered to those whose names were furnished by the Family Service. Each load meant a round trip of 196 miles.

Following the start of the Boy Scouts activities, the Salvation Army joined in similar activities and the Retail Growers' Association gave one thousand pounds of sugar to the Family Service for distribution to the needy for canning purposes.

The Service Committee of the Wilmington Area Council is holding special meetings to discuss ways and means by which the Scouts may serve destitute families during this coming winter, and the appointment of Scout Executive Ames R. Shields to the Mayor's Committee on Unemployment and relief has been announced.

HONOR WORLD FLIERS

Upon the occasion of their visit to Cincinnati, Ohio, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round the world fliers, were recently made members of the Kunitz Society, the Indian honor group of the Cincinnati Boy Scouts of which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is also a member. A Boy Scout in Indian attire performed the initiation.

Wholesale cigarette dealers and distributing stations for the big chain stores may profit from the purchase of stamps. They are allowed 10 percent reduction by the state for affixing stamps to each original package. It is said they have become so proficient that they can affix the stamps and save six percent profit for the firm. If this is true they may not care whether the cigarette stamp is ever abolished. They must open each crate when received from the cigarette factory; next open the big packages containing the cartons and next each individual carton. Then a stamp is affixed to each package of cigarettes which are replaced in the cartons, next in the large packages and finally in the shipping crates. Looks like they are going to lots of trouble, but just consider some of the "Big fellows" who will buy over a hundred thousand dollars worth of stamps per year. That's a saving of ten thousand at one time.

Great preparations are being made for the Gateway Jubilee to be held in the Capital City, September 28, 29 and 30. A pageant, "Opportunity," will be held in Ohio Stadium on the 29th and an orchestra of 125 members will be used for the concert and dancing. A great parade with floats from a number of Ohio cities participating will be held on Wednesday evening, Sept. 30. A jubilee queen will be selected from young ladies on the floats and she will be crowned at a celebration to be held following the parade.

The total number of accidents in the state the past month reported to the Industrial Commission was 17,698, which is 3,095 more than the previous month and 1,870 less than for the same month in 1930. Of the number 889 were public employees. Fatalities for the month increased to 126, or 46 more than the month before.

The first meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the year was held Thursday evening. We had a large crowd as could be expected for the first meeting, but our next meeting we want to fill the auditorium. The next meeting will be held October 8.

Mrs. Gilbert Crawford is the president of the association and Mrs. Harry Melvin is secretary, while F. A. Beatty is treasurer. It was decided to serve the hot lunch the first week in October. The women have canned fruits and vegetables to be used for the lunches.

The high school is planning to organize a literary society and a program will be given each month probably on Friday afternoon.

The boys and girls baseball teams are starting their practice and will probably have a game next Friday.

The Parent-Teachers' Association gave a reception for the teachers last Friday evening, Sept. 18.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

LAUD SCOUT FIRE-FIGHTERS FOR ENDING FOREST BLAZE

Scouts attending Camp Baxter, conducted by the San Joaquin-Calaveras Directed Council of the Boy Scouts of America, with headquarters at Stockton, Cal., recently received the congratulatory of M. B. Partt, State Forester, for their work in fighting a forest fire in the Sierras near their camp.

Thirty-five Scouts on a nature hike were on a trail about five miles from camp when the blaze was sighted. Armed only with Scout knives and two Scout axes, they cut and cleared a wide fire trail, back-firing around the burning area, thereby completely isolating the blaze.

Runners sent to camp brought sufficient Scouts and equipment to extinguish completely the fire in the underbrush. By checking the fire in time, the Scouts are credited with saving several hundred square miles of timber and grazing land. In appreciation of the Scouts' service, the Forestry Department is sending at regular intervals, men and equipment into the camp to train Scouts in fire-fighting as a part of their regular camp program.

HANDICRAFT WINS CUP

Frederick W. Hinkle, acting President of the Board of Park Commissioners of Cincinnati, Ohio, has presented a silver cup to Scout Denning Peaslee of Troop No. 131 of that city, for the best model of a proposed log cabin shelter in Mount Airy Forest.

"TIRE GRIEF" LESSENED

In the front of the Boy Scout Indian Village at San Diego, Calif., there may be seen a pile of "tire grief" about fourteen feet square and four feet deep. It contains some 5,344,671 pieces of glass, railroad spikes, nails, tin cans, and other tire destroyers.

The Boy Scouts of San Diego picked up these "puncture pests" as an annual Good Turn to the motorists of the city. It is one of the summer activities of the Scouts, who sometimes have their "puncture pest hikes" with rivalry to see who can collect the greatest number. Each Troop adds the week's results to the heap but only after a count is made and recorded.

COOL-HEADEDNESS PRAISED

While working on the farm of a relative near Brainerd, Minn., Scout Donovan Ogren of Troop 100 of St. Paul, Minn., recently demonstrated his proficiency in first aid which he learned as a Scout. One day Clinton Forrester, his cousin, 19, and he were sawing wood on a back circle saw. Dust accumulated under the frame, so deep as to impede the efficiency of the saw. Without stopping the saw, Forrester attempted to remove the dust with his foot. His foot slipped and his leg hit the saw, making a deep cut about an inch wide.

Scout Ogren pulled his cousin away and seeing the condition of the wound, grabbed a rope and made a tourniquet. He then accompanied the injured young man to a hospital where doctors praised his cool-headedness and efficient first aid of the Scout.

CONVICTION THAT THE BOY SCOUTS ARE

conviction that the Boy Scouts are now one of the greatest and most important in the modern young people's movements. The idea of readiness to help others, is one which unites nations; it can flow out of the natural compassion felt by good men, or out of the especially Catholic conception; the supernatural effect of a good deed.

Deeply moved, Lord Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout Movement, voiced his thanks for the splendid words spoken by a Catholic Prince of the Church as a tribute to Scouting.

RECEIVE LETTER FROM O. STATE U.

The Pickaway Dairy Co., 130 W. Water-st., distributors of the well known and used "Gold Bar" butter is in receipt of a letter from D. S. Kochheiser, extension specialist of the department of dairy technology at Ohio State University, in regard to prizes which were taken by the local company at the Ohio State Fair.

The letter is as follows:

The Pickaway Dairy Company, 130 W. Water Street, Circleville, Ohio.

Gentlemen:

I want to congratulate you upon your good showing at the Ohio State Fair. I feel that a product that can win second prize can generally be accepted as equal to the first prize, but in such a contest it is necessary to offer first and second prizes and no doubt there is some slight characteristic found by the judge to place the first over the second. However, the credit for the production of a good quality product should be just as great to the man with the red ribbon.

Enclosed you will find your score card and red ribbon for creamery butter in prints, and score card and red ribbon for creamery butter in tubs. Your premium money will be sent to you by the Fair Management. The Fairmont Creamery Company will mail you a check for your tub of butter.

Hoping that you will be showing again next year, I am very truly yours,

D. S. Kochheiser.

SINCLAIR GAS

NOW 13c GAL.

Sinclair gasoline can now be obtained from any of the county's filling stations for 13 cents per gallon, according to an announcement by Troy W. White, local bulk manager of the Sinclair Refining Co. This is a drop from the former price of 15 cents.

Sinclair realizes, with changing engines and changing motoring conditions, no one kind of gasoline can meet every motoring need or satisfy every motorist's demands.

One kind of engine-performance requires high-test gasoline—another requires high compression gas. Some drivers like a speedy, peppy, flashy gasoline. Some, whose motors knock, want a gas to stop knocks. Others prefer a gasoline which gives sustained power with long mileage.

Today, one gasoline cannot satisfy all these demands. BUT three gasolines can—and Sinclair "3-Gas" Service DOES—give you just the Superior Engine Performance you want.

The three gasolines offered by the Sinclair are: Sinclair Aircraft, Sinclair H-C and Sinclair Regular. The latter is now selling for 13 cents. It allows your engine to operate at its maximum compression and delivers its full power under all engine conditions.

Drive in at a Sinclair station tomorrow and try the new Sinclair 13 cent gas.

HENRY WEIMER FINE CANDIES

Henry Weimer, Circleville's veteran candy maker is still in business and has one of the most up-to-date staple and fancy groceries in this city. His store is located at 316 Watt-st. When Mr. Weimer first opened his store at this location his products offered included mostly candy and other like confections. Now he can supply any of your needs in the grocery line.

Probably Mr. Weimer's candies are the best known in Circleville and Pickaway-co. He began making candy when quite young and was employed by Mr. Wittich in his store for many years. Finally he decided to start his own business, and since that time has been one of the city's most successful and enterprising business men.

Besides his regular and usual products, Mr. Weimer always has a small featured product to offer, in keeping with the season of the year.

His candies are known all over the state, and his customers extend over the same area.

He asks you to visit his store on Watt-st. these afternoons and try some of his ice cream specials and soft drinks.

HASWELL FURNACE IS GOOD MAKE

With changing weather conditions prevailing most of the time, it is well to be on the safe side and be prepared to meet the cold weather which is undoubtedly on the way and probably just around the corner.

How will your homes be heated this winter? This is the question of any number of house residents. Probably the best solution to this question is the installation of a "Haswell Three Pipe Radiator Furnace." The furnace can be installed by skilled mechanics at reasonable prices.

Some of the advantages of this furnace are:

There is no necessity to remove the front to replace the grates, as this can be done through the ash door by any boy in five minutes.

The advantage of taking in the air which fans the fire through the hot blast door of our furnace over other makes is that it is taken in above the ash pan door and passes down to the ash space and is heated before it reaches the grates. Fire will burn better with a heated air blast than with a blast of cold air against the live coals.

The standard feed door is very large, so that large lumps of coal may be used. The feed door is a solid door, and by using our air blast we avoid using a slide in the feed door which checks the fire. From the door frame to the inside shell is only six inches, so smoke and gas will not accumulate in the pouch feed.

Mr. Haswell will be glad to answer any inquiries you wish to make.

Tanks for gasoline and gas engines can be furnished at Haswell's cheaper than you can buy them from the engine manufacturer.

to those who would come and gather them, they realized that many deserving families would not have a share in the free peaches due to the lack of transportation facilities.

Fortunately, before the world of "free peaches" was widely noised about, the camp truck of the Wilmington Council of the Boy Scouts of America, which covers the whole state and also a part of Maryland, returned to the city with some camp leaders. The Council communicated with the Family Service of the Associated Charities who agreed to cooperate by furnishing names of needy families who would appreciate the peaches.

The Wilmington Area Council through its Field Executive in southern Delaware, arranged with local Scouts to do the picking. Growers furnished baskets and the peaches were brought to the camp when the camp truck arrived manned by a group of Sea Scouts.

Two truck loads of peaches were brought into Wilmington and delivered to those whose names were furnished by the Family Service. Each load meant a round trip of 196 miles.

Following the start of the Boy Scouts activities, the Salvation Army joined in similar activities and the Retail Growers' Association gave one thousand pounds of sugar to the Family Service for distribution to the needy for canning purposes.

The Service Committee of the Wilmington Area Council is holding special meetings to discuss ways and means by which the Scouts may serve destitute families during this coming winter, and the appointment of Scout Executive Amos R. Shields to the mayor's Committee on Unemployment and relief has been announced.

HONOR WORLD FLIERS

Upon the occasion of their visit to Cincinnati, Ohio, Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round the world fliers, were recently made members of the Knish Society, the Indian honor group of the Cincinnati Boy Scouts of which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is also a member. A Boy Scout in Indian attire performed the initiation.

FIND STOLEN PURSE

A purse which had contained cash, diamonds and valuable papers, stolen from the home of Mrs. C. R. Beason of Royal Oak, Mich., was found recently in a field by two Boy Scouts, Robert Randall and Glen Arnold, who turned it over to the Royal Oak police. Twenty-five dollars was missing from the purse but the germs and papers were intact.

It is dumb stupidity for any woman to have bad breath. It offends others—ruins you socially. The worst of it is you, yourself, never know when you have it. Hoover Cabinet Said To Desire Dry Law Change

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Pres- sure upon President Hoover to modify his bone-dry attitude—to the extent of recommending 3 per cent beer—has now reached such a point that it was said in authoritative quarters today a majority of his cabinet are now lined up for it.

The agitation is purely on economic grounds, although doubtless the political advantages that might accrue from such a move also have been taken into consideration. In the presidential election of next year, there is every prospect of the Republicans facing a Democratic party that is anti-prohibition in candidate and platform.

It was to get at the economic facts concerning beer that the White House, through Walter H. Newton, one of the Hoover secretaries, called upon the census bureau for figures dealing with the employment aspects of the beer industry, and for figures dealing with revenues.

Publication of the fact that the White House had sought the figures caused a furore around the White House. At first denied, it was later admitted that Newton had asked for the statistics, but he maintained that he had not obtained them for President Hoover. He got them, he said, for "a private individual outside the White House," whose identity he refused to divulge, nor would Secretary Newton say whether he had placed them before Mr. Hoover. That, he said, was an "improper question."

So perturbed was the White House over the publication of the International News Service story that an investigation was immediately ordered of "the leak." The investigation was proceeding today.

Notwithstanding the perturbation of the White House over the revelation, nor the denials that the figures were intended for Mr. Hoover's consumption, the fact remains that a group of the President's most trusted counsellors have been engaged for some time in working out a program for the return of beer which they hope to "sell" Mr. Hoover.

They have been aided in their efforts by insistent pressure from bankers, industrialists, and business men who have passed in and out of Mr. Hoover's office during recent weeks, recommending "beer for revenue" and as an aid to employment. They have emphasized wholly the economic advantages of the move—at a time when the treasury is searching frantically for a "painless tax" as an aid to revenue, and when the administration is engaged in a gigantic effort to find jobs for workers.

The American Federation of Labor estimates that the return of beer would put many hundreds of thousands of men back to work in brewing and allied trades, and some fiscal authorities estimate it could be made productive of $500,000,000 a year in revenue.

NATION HAS TOO MANY SMALL RURAL SCHOOLS, REPORT SAYS

The small rural high school trails far behind the big city sister high school in its contribution to education, according to a recent bulletin of the Federal Office of Education. More than 14,000 rural high schools of 250 enrollment or less were studied for the report, which found the spread of weak secondary schools in country regions actually delaying the progress toward better educational advantages in the United States.

Since the World War the idea of a high school training for all of the country's children has been so thoroughly "sold" to rural taxpayers that a multitude of small high schools have sprung up in sparsely settled regions—many with 30 to 50 pupils and with as few as two teachers. Many of these institutions, lacking any intelligent plan of what a rural high school should be, are very poor imitations of the great city schools with a hundred times as many students and with elaborate equipment.

With a small teaching staff no

teacher can be a specialist in his subject, the Office of Education study, "The Smallness of America's Rural High Schools" by Walter H. Gaumnitz, rural school specialist, points out. He may be instructor in a dozen different subjects, in some of which he is poorly qualified; thus his pupils get a low grade training. He is overworked, naturally. The city school has attracted the better prepared teachers with more pay and more leisure so the country high school usually gets the left-overs.

The course of study also suffers, according to the bulletin. Modern secondary (high school) education has veered away from a rigid course in languages and mathematics. Social science, natural sciences and vocational training (stenography, bookkeeping, the trades, etc.) are now much in vogue. But the average small high school is deficient in science courses and is generally without any vocational work to offer. Limited in funds and teaching force, it can stick only to type class organization and methods. Extra-curriculum work, sports, dramatics, the school paper, all of which play large and necessary roles in city secondary school life as lessons, must often be omitted.

Refedies to the serious situation offered by the Federal Office of Education are: first, the careful study by each State of its rural school situation; second, cooperation among all Government and social agencies with a view to school consolidation; the conversion of some small senior high schools into junior high schools; and third, the employment at good salaries of teachers who are experts in special subjects, to cover several schools in a district, or the wide use of correspondence courses under competent supervision.

YOUNG VOCALISTS HAVE FINE CHANCE

Is there a Marion Talley or a Lawrence Tibbett hidden among the young singers of Circleville? These two young American opera concert and radio stars were compelled to fight their way to success.

"Throughout the country, in almost every community, active search is going on for young, non-professional singers between the ages of 18 and 25 years, who may compete for aggregate awards of $25,000 in cash and ten scholarships in recognized conservatories of music of their own selection," Mrs. J. P. Moffitt says. "No special condition is attached to the competition, save that the young people shall not be professionals in any sense. The purpose is to find young amateur singers. In the past four years many thousands of young people have competed in the National Radio Auditions. The forty who became national finalists—all of them absolutely unknown outside of their local communities before the auditions—are now well on the road to success. "I believe that we have young singers here in Circleville whose ambitions should be encouraged. I believe the National Audition offers them an opportunity for further study and for real success. As the first step, we must have our community represented in the state audition, which will take place in October. Hence I ask you to assist me in the work. We must all help."

DR. SIMS SUCCEEDS ROWLAND AT CHILLI

Dr. Frederick R. Sims of Washington, D. C., has taken over his new post as medical director in charge of U. S. Veterans Hospital No. 97, succeeding Dr. G. A. Rowland who becomes medical head of Neuro-psychiatric Division of the Veteran's Bureau.

Personnel of the hospital greeted the new director and his wife and bid farewell to Dr. and Mrs. Rowland when they entertained with a party at the Red Cross building Friday evening.

The evening was spent informally in dancing and social conversation. Dainty refreshments were served.

Dr. Sims paid tribute to the work of his predecessor in a statement to the press today.

"I am delighted to succeed a man like Dr. Rowland," he said. "He has built up one of the finest units of the administration here. I consider myself fortunate to be named to succeed Dr. Rowland and expect to continue the policies of the hospital along the same lines as in the past."

"I am delighted to be in Ohio having heard a great deal about the state, and although it is a new country for me, I have been acquainted with a number of the hospital personnel and do not feel as a stranger."

Dr. Sims was most recently attached to the medical service in the veterans' administration at Washington.

Dr. Rowland's appointment was effective as of the 16th, but he is at the present time on a leave status and will remain a few days before going to Washington. Today he and Mrs. Rowland were visiting at his former home in Delaware, Ohio.

Reformer: Standpatter

"I HAVE a deal more faith in the average businessman than I have in the average reformer," Elbert Hubbard once wrote.

Hubbard may have been the first person who put the thought into print, but it cannot be gainsaid that "them has long been the sentiments" of the average person.

It is no secret why right-thinking men and women have more faith in the businessman than in the reformer. It is simply an eternal admiration for the creator. The man in business is creating something. He is in the service of the people, filling a positive demand. But what is the reformer? At best he is only a theorist. While the businessman is filling the public's order the reformer makes orders for the public to fill. The businessman renders his service before demanding his pay, while the reformer demands his pay and then promises a service, guaranteed only by his word.

Reformers have never been overly popular, because theory is ever hypothetical and there has never been found a method of separating the sincere from the imposter. Centuries ago business was on a similar basis with honest and dishonest merchants in the same bazaar. Then the public watched the reformer with one eye while he kept the other on the merchant.

It is lamentable that reforming has not kept pace with business. Today business is firmly established on a foundation of public service and one price. Reformers are still guaranteeing no service and claiming many prices.

A Newspaper's Faith

THERE are certain critics of newspapers who apparently have little conception of the work that the newspapers are doing in the world. There was a time (our grandfathers can recall it) when there was comparatively little in the average newspaper to rouse a man from his dreams, make him look with a wideawake and seeing eye at the world around him, and—THINK.

This is what the real newspaper does today. It is not greatly bothered by the persons who say that most of the news should be suppressed because it is so "awful." The newspaper which believes in mirroring life as life really is shows greater faith in human nature than the critics—that is all. When they call this wrongly false that human nature instinctively craves rottenness and that the exposure of a vile career will prove enticing.

It is no more enticing than the picture of an insane asylum is enticing. It shows as nothing else can show how terrible a thing sin is.

Every line of the picture thunders with a power denied to speech. The memory of it is burned into the soul with a quenchless fire. The reader, old or young, serious or gay, can never misunderstand, can never forget. It is a lesson that lasts. It is the truth in flesh and blood—the truth acting itself out before our very eyes in real life.

A Flood of Gold

THROUGHOUT no fault of its own the United States is getting a bad name throughout the world as a gold hoarder. It is just as anxious to stem the flow of gold into the U. S. vaults as the countries from which it comes are anxious to keep it at home.

Conditions here are not such as would ordinarily attract foreign gold. Prevailing discount rates are so low that American gold would be pouring out of the country by the shipload if the rest of the world were not financially worse off than Uncle Sam.

It is not so much a problem of to much gold in America as it is a problem of too little in other countries, although surplus gold is proving a financial hazard here. There is nothing the United States can do, and about the only thing Europe can do is to regain her lost business and prosperity. She cannot do that fast enough to suit American bankers who are paying normal interest on huge deposits and collecting subnormal interest on dwindling loans.

HANDICAPPED

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

by ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT BY COVILI, FRIEDE, INC., — DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Geraldine Foster, pretty young clerk in the office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell disappeared on Saturday. Three days later her roommate, Betty Cantfield, notifies Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt. She states that Geraldine phoned her prior to her disappearance, saying she wished she was dead. Harry Armstrong, the missing girl's fiancé, had not heard from her since Friday. Dr. Maskell says he returned to his office Saturday afternoon to find Geraldine gone. At the Foster apartment Colt learns from Betty that Geraldine had quarreled with the doctor. The Commissioner finds an old-fashioned key in the pocket of Geraldine's coat, and part of a blackmail note, presumably in her handwriting, in the desk. Different ink than that in the apartment was used. It is learned that Betty quarreled with Geraldine, and that she was once engaged to Geraldine's brother, Bruce. Entering Dr. Maskell's home, Colt meets Maskell's chauffeur, muttering "Get me to talk? Never. But Geraldine was good to me." The doctor says there was a strange woman waiting outside his door when he returned Saturday.

CHAPTER VIII.

THERE were no lights on in my office and I called out to Geraldine. No answer. Then, to my astonishment the strange woman pushed past me without asking my permission, and walked straight through this reception room, yonder. Of course I followed her, but before I reached her side, she had gone on farther and opened the rear door and looked into the little room at the back. That, too was empty. I then asked her, rather peremptorily, what she was looking for, but she buried her chin in the collar of her coat, half-closed her eyes and said she was too late. Then she burst into tears. I tried to detain her, but she rushed past me, out into the hallway. I followed her, quite startled at her extraordinary behavior, and then I noticed there was a taxicab before my door. She got into it and drove away.

"You didn't notice the license number on the taxi, I suppose?" asked Thatcher Colt.

Doctor Maskell had not. "And that," said Doctor Maskell soberly, "is all that I know about it. At first I was rather inclined to think that Geraldine had played me a rather shabby trick recently, she has not been herself; talked about having royal blood in her veins—but now, I confess, I don't know what to think."

"Identity Unknown"

"You have no idea who the woman was?"

"No."

"Was she young or old?"

"I had the impression that she was around middle-aged."

"It could not have been Geraldine herself?"

"Good Lord, no!"

Thatcher Colt emptied the dottle from his pipe into an ash-tray and began refilling the bowl.

"Queen," he said musily.

"That mysterious lady might have been just a wandering person with a disorderly mind. On the other hand, she may yet prove to be of supreme importance in this case."

"Yes, certainly," agreed Doctor Maskell.

"I shall take a look through your establishment. Mind?" asked Thatcher Colt.

"Do you think Geraldine is still here?" asked the doctor, opening his eyes.

Without answering, the Police Commissioner rose and strode through the two rooms to the door at the back and through that into the rear room. I followed him, with Doctor Maskell marching at my heels. The sombre, brown eyes of Thatcher Colt were turning from one object to another in the clutter of stored material in that last room of the suite. Bending down, he fingered bottles and packages that lay loosely around and I noticed that over one large bottle he lingered. Stolidly the doctor watched as the Commissioner removed the stout cork and sniffed at the neck of the bottle. Then, still without a word, Thatcher Colt left the bottle and went on prowling into the consultation room. He halted suddenly before a closed door.

The Closet's Contents

"A clothes closet," answered Doctor Maskell.

Thatcher Colt opened it and thrust his hand inside.

"May I ask," inquired Maskell, "what you hope to find in there, Mr. Commissioner?"

Backing out of the closet, Thatcher Colt showed a brown fur coat in his hand.

"Did this belong to Geraldine Foster?" he asked, turning toward the doctor and staring at him with profound melancholy.

"What is that?"

"A clothes closet," answered Doctor Maskell.

ful of silver. Putting the coat and bag into my hands the Commissioner turned again to Doctor Maskell.

"Do you suppose the mysterious woman who accosted you brought back the coat and purse? Did you notice if she carried anything?"

"Why—why—no, I did not," answered the physician. "What makes you think about that?"

"I am sorry if I have inconvenienced you," replied Thatcher Colt gloomily. "And I am sorry to say that I may have to trouble you soon again. For the present, good-night."

"Yes, certainly," said Doctor Maskell, opening wide his door and bowing.

But at the threshold, Thatcher Colt paused.

"Doctor," he said, "I am sorry to observe, on departing, that you have not been frank with me."

"What do you mean?" returned Maskell sharply.

"You failed to tell me that you and Geraldine quarreled before you left on your errand of good cheer. You had a heated quarrel, but you have kept quiet about it."

Doctor Maskell looked startled, then shrugged his shoulders.

"That is true," he admitted. "But it was a private matter. If

Sound Teeth Depend on Diet and Cleanliness

Daily Brushings Alone Are Not Sufficient to Prevent Decay, Says Authority, One Must Also Eat Foods Containing the Building Elements.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

EVERY day, evidence accumulates to prove that good teeth depend almost entirely upon proper diet. Much experimental work is being done in this field.

No matter where we go we see signs and other advertisements telling us of the importance of proper cleansing of the teeth. Various tooth-pastes and mouthwashes are advocated to prevent tooth decay.

Children in the schools are shown how to use their tooth-brushes. They are taught the importance of brushing the teeth so as to get into the crevices, and to massage the gums. Care of the teeth has now become common knowledge.

In spite of the increased use of the toothbrush, tooth decay has continued to increase. It is now evident to most dentists and physicians, to all who are interested in this great problem, that cleansing the teeth once or twice a day is not sufficient to prevent the spread of decay.

Unless the diet is the proper one, all the care that we can give the teeth will not preserve them. Of course it is not contended that if the diet is correct, it is proper to overlook the daily hygiene of the teeth. Diet and cleanliness should go hand in hand.

Not long ago a series of interesting experiments were started in England and in this country. These experiments, though not done on human beings, gave important information as to the part the diet plays in the care of the teeth.

Vitamin D Plays a Part

As a result of these experiments it was definitely proved that the outer layer of the teeth, which is spoken of as the "enamel," is the layer which resists decay. When there is a poor diet this layer may be destroyed, showing cracks or areas of roughness which allow the decay to enter the deeper parts and to permit infection.

To keep the enamel in proper condition, it is important that the diet should contain sufficient lime, phosphorus and other food elements. There should be plenty of substances yielding vitamin D. This assists in the growth of the teeth, and insures strong bone development.

Foods which supply these demands of the teeth are the foods which should be contained in everybody's daily diet. They include plenty of milk, butter and eggs. These are the most common foods which give an abundance of this vital element spoken of as vitamin D. Of course there are other foods which will supply this vitamin, and insure good lime development. Such foods as cod-liver oil, fish oils, suet, butter and egg yolk are highly recommended.

Tea-Time Appetizer

If you feel that you'd either like to work up a little appetite before tea-time or settle your tummy after imbibing, we suggest this innocent and thoroughly effective pastime. Georgia Coleman, world champion woman diver, is demonstrating our point by a graceful leap over a tea-table at a swimming meet at Beverly Hills, Calif. The tea-timers hardly know whether to gulp their tea or gasp at Georgia.

AT THE CLIFTONA

"This Modern Age," the new Joan Crawford M-G-M starring vehicle which opened last night at the Cliftona Theater for a three days engagement, is a most satisfactory piece of entertainment.

It exploits, of course, the personality and radiant physical charm of the perennially popular Joan Crawford. It does this in a scintillating story of modern life, done with a rare new twist.

Pauline Frederick is the very modern mother who joins in the jollities of Paris with her daughter. It is daughter's impassioned defense of mother's peccadilloes to

Reformer: Standpatter

I HAVE a deal more faith in the average businessman than I have in the average reformer. Elbert Hubbard once wrote.

Hubbard may have been the first person who put the thought into print, but it cannot be gainsaid that "them has long been the sentiments" of the average person.

It is no secret why right-thinking men and women have more faith in the businessman than in the reformer. It is simply an eternal admiration for the creator. The man in business is creating something. He is in the service of the people, filling a positive demand. But what is the reformer? At best he is only a theorist. While the businessman is filling the public's order the reformer makes orders for the public to fill. The businessman renders his service before demanding his pay, while the reformer demands his pay and then promises a service, guaranteed only by his word.

Reformers have never been overly popular, because theory is ever hypothetical and there has never been found a method of separating the sincere from the impostor. Centuries ago business was on a similar basis with honest and dishonest merchants in the same bazaar. Then the public watched the reformer, with one eye while he kept the other on the merchant.

A Newspaper's Faith

THERE are certain critics of newspapers who apparently have little conception of the work that the newspapers are doing in the world. There was a time (our grandfathers can recall it) when there was comparatively little in the average newspaper to rouse a man from his dreams, make him look with a wideawake and seeing eye at the world around him, and THINK.

This is what the real newspaper does today. It is not greatly bothered by the persons who say that most of the news should be suppressed because it is so "awful." The newspaper which believes in mirroring life as life really is shows greater faith in human nature than the critics—that is all. When they call this wrongly fear that human nature instinctively craves rottenness and that the exposure of a vile career will prove enticing.

It is no more enticing than the picture of an insane asylum is enticing. It shows as nothing else can show how terrible a thing sin is.

Every line of the picture thunders with a power denied to speech. The memory of it is burned into the soul with a quenchless fire. The reader, old or young, serious or gay, can never misunderstand, can never forget. It is a lesson that lasts. It is the truth in flesh and blood—the truth acting itself out before our very eyes in real life.

A Flood of Gold

THROUGH no fault of its own the United States is getting a bad name throughout the world as a gold hoarder. It is just as anxious to stem the flow of gold into the U. S. vaults as the countries from which it comes are anxious to keep it at home.

Conditions here are not such as would ordinarily attract foreign gold. Prevailing discount rates are so low that American gold would be pouring out of the country by the shipload if the rest of the world were not financially worse off than Uncle Sam.

It is not so much a problem of too much gold in America as it is a problem of too little in other countries, although surplus gold is proving a financial hazard here. There is nothing the United States can do, and about the only thing Europe can do is to regain her lost business and prosperity. She cannot do that fast enough to suit American bankers who are paying normal interest on huge deposits and collecting subnormal interest on dwindling loans.

HANDICAPPED

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

by ANTHONY ABBOT

COPYRIGHT BY COVIEL, FRIED, INC. — DISTRIBUTED BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

Geraldine Foster, pretty young clerk in the office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell disappeared on Saturday. Three days later her roommate, Betty Canfield, notifies Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt. She states that Geraldine phoned her prior to her disappearance, saying she wished she was dead. Harry Armstrong, the missing girl's fiancé, had not heard from her since Friday. Dr. Maskell says he returned to his office Saturday afternoon to find Geraldine gone. At the Foster apartment Colt learns from Betty that Geraldine had quarreled with the doctor. The Commissioner finds an old-fashioned key in the pocket of Geraldine's coat, and part of a blackmail note, presumably in her handwriting, in the desk. Different ink than that in the apartment was used. It is learned that Betty quarreled with Geraldine, and that she was once engaged to Geraldine's brother, Bruce. Entering Dr. Maskell's home, Colt meets Maskell's chauffeur, Muttering "Get me to talk? Never. But Geraldine was good to me." The doctor says there was a strange woman waiting outside his door when he returned Saturday.

CHAPTER VIII.

THERE were no lights on in my office and I called out to Geraldine. No answer. Then, to my astonishment the strange woman pushed past me without asking my permission, and walked straight through the reception room, yonder. Of course I followed her, but before I reached her side, she had gone on farther and opened the rear door and looked into the little room at the back. That, too was curiously. I then asked her, rather peremptorily, what she was looking for, but she buried her chin in the collar of her coat, half-closed her eyes and said she was too late. Then she burst into tears. I tried to detain her, but she rushed past me, out into the hallway. I followed her, quite startled at her extraordinary behavior, and then I noticed there was a taxicab before my door. She got into it and drove away.

"You didn't notice the license number on the taxi, I suppose?" asked Thatcher Colt.

Doctor Maskell had not. "And that," said Doctor Maskell soberly, "is all that I know about it. At first I was rather inclined to think that Geraldine had played me a rather shabby trick recently she has not been herself; talked about having royal blood in her veins—but now, I confess, I don't know what to think."

Identity Unknown

"You have no idea who the woman was?"
"No."
"Was she young or old?"
"I had the impression that she was around middle-aged."
"It could not have been Geraldine herself?"
"Good Lord, no!"
Thatcher Colt emptied the bottle from his pipe into an ash-tray and began refilling the bowl.
"Queer," he said musingly. "That mysterious lady might have been just a wandering person with a disordered mind. On the other hand, she may yet prove to be of supreme importance in this case."
"Yes, certainly," agreed Doctor Maskell.

"Yes, certainly. I cannot imagine what it is doing in there. I did not know it was there. The closet had not been opened by me since Saturday."
"Was this the coat she wore to work on Christmas Eve?"
"I am certain that it was. I saw her with it on when she went out to lunch."
Thatcher Colt closed his eyes as he stood there with the girl's coat held against his chest.
"Christmas Eve was a cold day," he said in a low voice. "The air was damp and raw and piercing. If Geraldine were going out anywhere, she would need her coat. And there is her bag, hanging on the same nail with her coat. Where can the owner be—if she went out with no coat and no purse?"
In a strained silence we stood there while Thatcher Colt examined the purse, checking up on the small miscellany of its contents—compact, lip-stick, a book of addresses, a roll of bills and a hand-

Sound Teeth Depend on Diet and Cleanliness

Daily Brushings Alone Are Not Sufficient to Prevent Decay, Says Authority, One Must Also Eat Foods Containing the Building Elements.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

EVERY day, evidence accumulates to prove that good teeth depend almost entirely upon proper diet. Much experimental work is being done in this field.

No matter where we go we see signs and other advertisements telling us of the importance of proper cleansing of the teeth. Various tooth-pastes and mouthwashes are advocated to prevent tooth decay.

Children in the schools are shown how to use their tooth-brushes. They are taught the importance of brushing the teeth so as to get into the crevices, and to massage the gums.

Care of the teeth has now become common knowledge.

In spite of the increased use of the toothbrush, tooth decay has continued to increase. It is now evident to most dentists and physicians that all who are interested in this great problem, that cleansing the teeth once or twice a day is not alone sufficient to prevent the spread of decay.

Unless the diet is the proper one, all the care that we can give the teeth will not preserve them. Of course, it is not contended that if the diet is correct, it is proper to overlook the daily hygiene of the teeth. Diet and cleanliness should go hand in hand.

Not long ago a series of interesting experiments were started in England and in this country. These experiments, though not done on human beings, gave important information as to the part the diet plays in the care of the teeth.

Vitamin D Plays a Part

As a result of these experiments it was definitely proved that the outer layer of the teeth, which is spoken of as the "enamel," is the layer which resists decay. When there is a poor diet this layer may be destroyed, showing cracks or areas of roughness which allow the decay to enter the deeper parts and to permit infection.

To keep the enamel in proper condition, it is important that the diet should contain sufficient lime, phosphorus and other food elements. There should be plenty of substances yielding vitamin D. This assists in the growth of the teeth, and insures strong bone development.

Foods which supply these demands of the teeth are the foods which should be contained in everybody's daily diet. They include plenty of milk, butter and eggs. These are the most common foods which give an abundance of this vital element spoken of as vitamin D. Of course there are other foods which will supply this vitamin, and insure good bone development. Such foods as cod-liver oil, fish oils, meat, butter and egg yolk are highly recommended.

Hoover Cabinet Said To Desire Dry Law Change

WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.—Pres- sure upon President Hoover to modify his bone-dry attitude—to the extent of recommending 3 per cent beer—has now reached such a point that it was said in authoritative quarters today a majority of his cabinet are now lined up for it.

The agitation is purely on economic grounds, although doubtless the political advantages that might accrue from such a move also have been taken into consideration. In the presidential election of next year, there is every prospect of the Republicans facing a Democratic party that is anti-prohibition in candidate and platform.

It was to get at the economic facts concerning beer that the White House, through Walter H. Newton, one of the Hoover secretaries, called upon the census bureau for figures dealing with the employment aspects of the beer industry, and for figures dealing with revenues.

Publication of the fact that the White House had sought the figures caused a furore around the White House. At first denied, it was later admitted that Newton had asked for the statistics, but he maintained that he had not obtained them for President Hoover. He got them, he said, for "a private individual outside the White House," whose identity he refused to divulge, nor would Secretary Newton say whether he had placed them before Mr. Hoover. That, he said, was an "improper question."

So perturbed was the White House over the publication of the International News Service story that an investigation was immediately ordered of "the leak." The investigation was proceeding today.

Notwithstanding the perturbation of the White House over the revelation, nor the denials that the figures were intended for Mr. Hoover's consumption, the fact remains that a group of the President's most trusted counselors have been engaged for some time in working out a program for the return of beer which they hope to "sell" Mr. Hoover.

They have been aided in their efforts by insistent pressure from bankers, industrialists, and business men who have passed in and out of Mr. Hoover's office during recent weeks, recommending "beer for revenue" and as an aid to employment. They have emphasized wholly the economic advantages of the move—at a time when the treasury is searching frantically for a "painless tax" as an aid to revenue, and when the administration is engaged in a gigantic effort to find jobs for workers.

The American Federation of Labor estimates that the return of beer would put many hundreds of thousands of men back to work in brewing and allied trades, and some fiscal authorities estimate it could be made productive of $500,000,000 a year in revenue.

Sues Aimee's Mate

Any discordant note now heard in David L. Hutton's baritone warbling probably may be safely laid to Myrtle St. Pierre (above), of Los Angeles, who has filed a $100,000 heart-balm suit against the new and third husband of Aimee Semple McPherson, famous evangelist. Hutton, who is Aimee's voice instructor and sings in her Angelus Temple, is alleged to have betrayed Miss St. Pierre.

NATION HAS TOO MANY SMALL RURAL SCHOOLS, REPORT SAYS

The small rural high school trails far behind the big city sister high school in its contribution to education, according to a recent bulletin of the Federal Office of Education. More than 14,000 rural high schools of 250 enrollment or less were studied for the report, which found the spread of weak secondary schools in country regions actually delaying the progress toward better educational advantages in the United States.

Since the World War the idea of a high school training for all of the country's children has been so thoroughly "sold" to rural taxpayers that a multitude of small high schools have sprung up in sparsely settled regions—many with 30 to 50 pupils and with as few as two teachers. Many of these institutions, lacking any intelligent plan of what a rural high school should be, are very poor imitations of the great city schools with a hundred times as many students and with elaborate equipment.

With a small teaching staff no

teacher can be a specialist in his subject, the Office of Education study, "The Smallness of America's Rural High Schools" by Walter H. Gaumnitz, rural school specialist, points out. He may be instructor in a dozen different subjects, in some of which he is poorly qualified; thus his pupils get a low grade training. He is overworked, naturally. The city school has attracted the better prepared teachers with more pay and more leisure so the country high school usually gets the left-overs.

The course of study also suffers, according to the bulletin. Modern secondary (high school) education has veered away from a rigid course in languages and mathematics. Social science, natural sciences and vocational training (stenography, bookkeeping, the trades, etc.) are now much in vogue. But the average small high school is deficient in science courses and is generally without any vocational work to offer. Limited in funds and teaching force, it can stick only to type class organization and methods. Extra-curriculum work, sports, dramatics, the school paper, all of which play large and necessary roles in city secondary school life as lessons, must often be omitted.

Refedies to the serious situation offered by the Federal Office of Education are: first, the careful study by each State of its rural school situation; second, cooperation among all Government and social agencies with a view to school consolidation, the conversion of some small senior high schools into junior high schools, and third, the employment at good salaries of teachers who are experts in special subjects, to cover several schools in a district, or the wide use of correspondence courses under competent supervision.

YOUNG VOCALISTS HAVE FINE CHANCE

Is there a Marion Talley or a Lawrence Tibbett hidden among the young singers of Circleville.

These two young American opera concert and radio stars were compelled to fight their way to success.

"Throughout the country, in almost every community, active search is going on for young, non-professional singers between the ages of 18 and 25 years, who may compete for aggregate awards of $25,000 in cash and ten scholarships in recognized conservatories of music of their own selection." Mrs. J. P. Moffit says. "No special condition is attached to the competition, save that the young people shall not be professionals in any sense. The purpose is to find young amateur singers. In the past four years many thousands of young people have competed in the National Radio Auditions. The forty who became national finalists—all of them absolutely unknown outside of their local communities before the auditions—are now well on the road to success.

"I believe that we have young singers here in Circleville whose ambitions should be encouraged. I believe the National Audition offers them an opportunity for further study and for real success. As the first step, we must have our community represented in the state audition, which will take place in October. Hence I ask you to assist me in the work. We must all help."

... no bamboozlin' about that!"

SURE! When a word fits, you know it! "Satisfy" just fits CHESTERFIELD. A smoker picks up a package, and he likes its neat appearance—no heavy inks or odors from ink. That satisfies him.

Then he examines a Chesterfield. It is well-filled; it is neat in appearance; the paper is pure white. And that satisfies him.

He lights up. At the very first puff he likes the flavor and the rich aroma. He decides that it tastes better—neither raw nor over-sweet; just pleasing and satisfying.

Then he learns it is milder. That's another way of saying that there is nothing irritating about it. And again he's satisfied!

Satisfy—they've got to satisfy! The right tobaccos, the CHESTERFIELD kind, cured and aged, blended and cross-blended, to a taste that's right. Everything that goes into CHESTERFIELD is the best that money can buy and that science knows about. CHESTERFIELDS do a complete job of it. They Satisfy!

MEXICO CITY—Mexico City has now assumed rank with the cities of the world having over a million people, as the result of a Mexican Presidential decree extending the city's boundaries. So reports Assistant Trade Commissioner Edward D. McLaughlin at Mexico City. The decree takes effect September 24, 1931, at which time parts of the villages of Guadalupe Hidalgo, General Anaya, Ixtacalco and Atzacotalco became part of the capital city. A former law of December 31, 1928, had already provided that the former municipalities of Mexico, Tacuba, Tacubaya and Mixcoac should comprise the capital city. The last three, formerly separate towns, have since that date been known as suburbs of Mexico City though an integral part of it.

Independent Football Team Being Organized

Merchants Back All-Star Squad

Circleville will have an independent football team, it became known today, following an announcement that a number of the city's merchants are sponsoring a team which is expected to begin practice this week. The team will be known as the Independent Merchants.

Fifteen candidates have signed up thus far and a meeting has already been held for organization. Measurements for uniforms were taken at this time. The idea of such a squad originated with the team's manager, Reynold Greene, who spoke to and convinced a number of merchants of the idea. The team is expected to be one of the best independent gridiron editions of central Ohio as it contains a combination of high school and college athletes, all of whom have made names for themselves in their respective positions. Each candidate has expressed willingness to work and appears to have plenty of sticktiveness, which qualities have not been apparent of such teams in former years.

Circleville has not had a good independent football team for several years and it is expected that this edition will be received well by local fans, after it has made its initial performance which is expected to take place early in October.

New uniforms will be purchased for each of the fifteen candidates by local merchants. The jerseys will be a dark green, bearing the merchants' name in white letters on the front. Large white numerals will appear on the back. A Northwestern type of headgear and a late style of pants will make up the outfit.

Although a complete schedule has not been arranged, it is expected the first game will see the local aggregation opposing Mt. Sterling. Other games of only tentative arrangements have been made including contests with the Chillicothe Orangemen headed by Byron Eby, Wyandotte Springs Club of Powell, O., Newark A. C., Newark, Trout's Collegians, Red Mutes, Linden Business Men's Association, Westside A. C., Morrey's Jewellers, all teams of Columbus and the Army and Navy Union team of Akron. Arrangements are to be made so that the local team may be entered in the Spaulding League of Columbus. This league includes semi-pro teams from central Ohio. If plans are completed and the local aggregation is entered in the league, it will meet some of the best semi-pro teams in the state.

Arrangements are also being attempted for a game with Coach Pete Herberholz's high school Tigers for an Alumni contest on Thanksgiving. If plans are completed the game will be played on the high school grid and entire proceeds will be given to the high school athletic association.

Although plans have not been completed, it is the hope of Manager Greene that the high school field will be secured as the site of the contests to be played here. This is the only suitable field in the city to play the games. The contests will be played on Sunday afternoons and are expected to be weekly events.

Two other games are also being contemplated. If possible a night-game will be arranged at Lancaster on one day of the Lancaster fair and it is also expected that a Pumpkin show game will be played here.

W. N. Griffith, former Circleville high school football coach, and Bill Donahue of this city have offered their services as coaches and T. W. White will assist Manager Reynold Greene.

The roster of the team will include: Loring Davis, quarter at C. H. S. four years; Cy Baucher, former, high school tackle and end; Ernest Weiler, former All South Central Ohio fullback and a member of the 1927 Ohio University's squad; Fred Skimer, Chillicothe, one-time all S. C. O. L. guard; Carl Wallace, high school star and S. C. O. L. tackle in 1929; Bunk Radcliff, guard on the 1931 C. H. S. eleven; Leo H. White, a tackle and center in high school; John 'Bugs' McCrady, high school star at half and tackle, also played guard, honorable mention in all S. C. O. L. league, has played with other local teams; Even Merriman, former star punter at C. H. S., will be relied upon for this feature in games to be played; Ralph Wallace, fullback in high

STECHER AND WYCOFF MEET

Former Heavyweight Champion of World Seeking To Regain Lost Honors.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21—Joe Stecher of Dodge, Neb., the "Daddy" of all the scissor artists and one of the most colorful and popular champions that ever held the world's heavyweight wrestling championship is to invade the middle west.

Stecher's first bout of his invasion of this section is scheduled for next Wednesday night here when he clashes with the huge, black thatched youngster that has taken Ohio mat circles by storm, Lee Wyoff of St. Louis University.

Certainly Stecher is not picky opponents in this campaign which he is starting and which he hopes will eventually carry him back to the world championship heights. If he were he most certainly would not have chosen Wyoff for his first match for Lee is fresh from triumphs over the flower of this section and only recently came within an eyelash of defeating John Pesek, title claimant here.

'Sophomores are Hope Of State's Schools'—Fesler

(This article, introducing Wesley Fesler, All-American football star at Ohio State university in 1925 and 1930, as a football writer, is the first of a series which the former Buckeye hero will prepare exclusively for International News Service this season. Fesler's articles, dealing with the Ohio College football race, will appear on Mondays and Fridays throughout the football season.)

BY WESLEY FESLER
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21.—I wish I could move back the calendar and make myself a young sophomore again, pulling on my headgear for my first college football game.

It would be pleasant to be back on the Ohio State squad, a sophomore getting ready for my first game with Illinois and Indiana—and Michigan—but it would be glorious to be a sophomore anywhere in Ohio this year.

For this is to be the sophomore's golden year. The chance of a decade awaits the younger fellows. I can't recall a season when the Ohio college teams have been so in need of material from last year's freshman squads.

From Cincinnati U. and Xavier, up to Case and Reserve, the coaches are shouting for the sophomores, and the old football saying: "As go the sophomores, so goes the team," is truer than usual.

GRADUATION HITS

Walloped by graduation, nearly every team is looking to its second year men; Cincinnati, Ohio Wesleyan, Miami, Ohio U., Akron, Wooster, Case, Heidelberg—all of them.

I look for the new members of the conference to supply a great share of the upsets in the Buckeye A. A., where the annual battle for glory and honor will be hard fought. DePauw, with 15 letter men and a great sophomore squad, must be regarded as dangerous, while Wabash, with the same lineup as finished last season, cannot be looked upon as a push-over.

Ohio University, with another strong guard, is expected to win the title again, with Miami and Ohio Wesleyan as the strongest contenders.

Cincinnati has a stiff schedule and can hardly be counted upon to make an impressive record but the sophomore material is good enough to make the team one of the great possibilities.

Added deception and drive which results from the double-winged back formation, in vogue at Miami this fall, should enable the "Red-skin" backfield to dent many of the opposing lines. However, Miami may find many difficulties arising from the use of the new formation.

Gauthier, at Wesleyan, may have trouble in building a line to open holes for his backfield, which, due to material, should be good. Wesleyan needs to uncover tackles and ends of high caliber before attempting to overcome a really stiff schedule.

Under a new coach and starting a new system, Denison can hardly hope to be at the top at the end of the season.

Wittenberg's only conference game is with Miami on Nov. 7. The outcome of this game will probably have a great effect on the standing of teams at the close of the season.

Denison looks to me like a strong favorite to repeat in the Ohio conference.

RACE EXPECTED

Because of the diversity of schedules in the Ohio conference, however, the race in the 18-team league is bound to be a close one, and one almost impossible to predict.

The Tiffin team has 10 of last year's regulars and some others who are very likely looking prospects. The forward wall will be strong and the backfield should be fair. Akron, Dayton, Case and Wooster all should be near the top.

Akron won six conference games last fall and is greatly feared by the other teams this year. Dayton plays only one conference game, that being with Xavier, but has a difficult outside schedule.

Much better football is expected from Hiram, Kenyon, Ohio Northern and Otterbein. Kenyon and Hiram did not win any games last season.

Xavier is looking forward to only a fair team. Mount Union, Capital, Ashland, Muskingum, Oberlin, Kent State and the other remaining teams are not doped to be very strong. Their only chance will come from the discovery of good material.

But, as the football saying goes, "as go the sophomores, so goes the team."

Buckeye Court Schedule Made

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 21—Although eight football games are yet to be played before the minds of Ohio State University sport fans turn to other athletic attractions, time was taken out Sunday by university officials to announce one of the best basketball schedules ever arranged for a Buckeye quintet.

Besides the usual array of strong conference opponents Ohio State will meet Missouri, Yale, Vanderbilt, Ohio University and Navy in non-conference games.

The complete schedule:

- Dec. 8—Ohio University.
- Dec. 12—Missouri.
- Dec. 22—Yale.
- Dec. 31—Vanderbilt.
- Jan. 4—Illinois at Champaign.
- Jan. 9—Iowa.
- Jan. 16—Iowa at Iowa City.
- Jan. 23—Northwestern at Evans-ton.
- Jan. 28—Michigan.
- Feb. 6—Navy at Annapolis.
- Feb. 8—Purdue.
- Feb. 13—Illinois.
- Feb. 15—Purdue at Lafayette.
- Feb. 20—Chicago at Chicago.
- Feb. 27—Chicago.
- Feb. 29—Northwestern.
- Mar. 7—Michigan at Ann Ar-bor.

India's Idol Comes Ashore

Mahatma Gandhi, the Indian leader invested with the destinies of millions of his followers, is shown, attired in his usual simple native garb, as he left the S. S. Rajputana at Marseilles, France, on his way to the second Indian round-table conference in London.

MEXICO CITY—Mexico City has now assumed rank with the cities of the world having over a million people, as the result of a Mexican Presidential decree extending the city's boundaries. So reports Assistant Trade Commissioner Edward D. McLaughlin at Mexico City. The decree takes effect September 24, 1931, at which time parts of the villages of Guadalupe Hidalgo, General Anaya, Ixtacalco and Atzacotalco became part of the capital city. A former law of December 31, 1928, had already provided that the former municipalities of Mexico, Tacuba, Tacubaya and Mixcoac should comprise the capital city. The last three, formerly separate towns, have since that date been known as suburbs of Mexico City though an integral part of it.

Communism vs. Capitalism

One of the current sensations of the Berlin art world in this fantastic bust depicting communism and capitalism—with their backs turned! Communism is represented at the left by Nikolai Lenin, first president of the council of the Russian Soviet, while capitalism is depicted in the features of John D. Rockefeller. It is the work of Dorothea Charol.

DELICIOUS BUTTER MADE FROM FRUITS

Peaches, pears, apples, and grapes may be made into delicious fruit butters and provide an attractive, appetizing addition to this winter's menus, according to nutrition specialists in the department of home economics at the Ohio State University.

Fruit butters, they say, are made by cooking fruit pulp with sugar until a mixture of a consistency suitable for spreading is formed. In general the fruit is cooked until tender, rubbed through a colander or sieve to remove all skins, seeds and cores, and cooked with sugar. From one-third to one-half as much sugar as pulp is usually used, depending upon the degree of sweetness desired.

Butters require frequent stirring to prevent burning. Quick cooking gives a clearer product. Sometimes a combination of the pulp of more than one fruit gives a better flavor than where one fruit alone is used.

In making peach butter, they suggest the following recipe: peel and stone the peaches. Cook in as small amount of water as possible until they are reduced to a pulp. Rub through a colander. Add one-half as much sugar as pulp and cook the mixture until it is thick and clear. Constant stirring toward the last will be necessary to prevent burning. Pack into clean hot jars and seal at once.

Pear butter is made in much the same way as is peach butter, except the pears need not be peeled and cored, but are cooked and run through a sieve. The flavor is improved if combined with lemon juice or other tart fruit.

WOULD CUT FIRE BLIGHT LOSSES

Losses from fire blight may be reduced by cutting and sawing off all infected twigs and branches during September or October when terminal growth on apple and pear trees has ceased, says A. L. Pierstorff, extension specialist in plant pathology at the Ohio State University.

If the removal of blighted twigs is left until the pruning season when the trees are dormant, many dead twigs will be missed and it is from such twigs that the blight will start springing.

Pruned twigs, he states, should be carried from the orchard and burned. After carefully removing the blighted branches in the fall before the leaves drop from the trees, a detailed inspection should be made of the orchard the following spring just before new growth starts and before blossoming. All dead twigs should be cut at least 3 inches below the point where dead wood ceases.

At this time of the year it is not necessary to use a disinfectant in preventing blight.

In the spring, it is necessary to use a disinfectant for the tools and on any large wounds where cankers are cut out. The disinfectant is made by dissolving two tablets of bichloride of mercury and cyanide of mercury in 1 quart of water. The solution is extremely poisonous and should be kept out of the reach of children and away from livestock.
